MY NOTICE OF EXPECTATION FROM THE SCHOOL (dad)

Please Please Please stop john from using all your washes, gels, soaps, chemicals, until I am fully informed of their contents, and consent to you in writing only. Please keep them out of johns reach, and here on now assume he is not allowed to use them until I say so.

To make your job easier, and if it will help, I will gladly give you a bar of Johnson baby soap. I can also supply Johnsons shampoo that can be easily decanted into a hand press container if it would help...

I have informally and formally, and on a number of occasions, spoke to many staff now at the school, including head and deputy head, of my personal problems with chemicals and toxins and their neurological side effects in nowadays everyday products, and we both already know john has similar occurrences...

Please supply me an empty used container of what was used (on Friday 27-03-2022 by Miss Basche we think) with the ingredients label attached, when an empty is available, so I can go do some investigation. Also please supply me a copy of your data sheet related to the use of this product as per cosh guidelines.

Please supply me an empty used container of what is used on every child every day in the morning before they are let in with the ingredients label attached, when an empty is available, so I can go do some investigation. Also please supply me a copy of your data sheet related to the use of this product as per cosh guidelines.

Plus, any other chemicals used in the day to day running of the school that are applied directly to the children's hands face bums etc. I want to know, I want data sheets please, and an empty container if possible please. If there aren't any others used then please ignore. If you are unsure please ask.

Emma Goode Johns Mum

I noticed on Wednesday 23rd March 2022 when John came home from school, his hands was red raw and I was convinced it was an allergic reaction. I wasn't sure on what the reaction was from so I mentioned about the hands in the blue book and asked that you do not put anything on John's hands anymore. On Thursday when I looked in the blue book it was mentioned that John constantly uses the hand gel all the time even when he was not to. I explained to John that he needs to stop using the hand gel at school all together and just wash his hands with water. On Friday when John came home I asked him if he used the hand gel at school and he said no but Miss Basche was putting it on his hands. Over the weekend we noticed that Johns hands was getting worse from the allergic reaction from the hand gel. On his right hand he has turned grazes and sore spots on the knuckles. Today (Sunday 27th March 2022) we noticed John's hands are very rough and dry.

I am pleading with you to stop using hand gels, hand washes or anything on John's hands from now on please. This is the second time this has happened. The first time was back in January and we thought it was to do with the cold weather, but now I am beginning to think that it is the stuff you put on the children's hands all day every day.

NOTES ON WHY I AM CONCERNED FOR JOHN... (dad)

When I met Emma she had to stop using balsam shampoo because I would have mild epileptic brain seizures and the minute she stopped using that the issue went away immediately. She has had to give up all her smellies and use Johnsons soap and shampoo like I do. Johnsons has never caused me any issues whatsoever...

My favourite ck one and Avon roll-on body had to be stopped along with many others many years ago now, because they were giving me headaches neurological issues...

John's aunt once bathed him in Worcester when he was little, then phoned us panicking saying they were going to rush John to a hospital because he was breaking out in red sore sensitive skin issues all over. Even after supplying them Johnsons and explaining, they still used their preferred smellies at home, and put John in severe discomfort. I told them to bring him home and I would take care of him. Stuck him in loop warm bath, washed thoroughly in Johnsons baby soap, then bathed him a second time in water only, and within the hour, screaming stopped, and skin was more bearable for him. Next day back to normal...

Emma Goode – When John was just over a month old I had to go to a family meal in Worcester to celebrate my little sister graduating from University. My little sister and my second oldest sister went to the bathroom to change John's nappy. I told them not to use the baby wipes but to use the cotton wools balls and water. When they came back John was crying and screaming the place down. I asked my sisters what happened in the bathroom and they said nothing and that they used the baby wipes and not the cotton wools balls. I was not happy. I took John back into the bathroom and changed him myself. When I took his nappy off I noticed that his bum was red from the baby wipes my sisters have used on him. I used the cotton wool balls and water and cleaned him up and within 10 minutes he had stop crying and screaming and he was back to being happy again.

We brought a tablet holder for John's tablet. After a month or so I noticed his fingertips started to blister and at first we was not sure what it was from then the finger tips started to scap over, that's when I realised it was the tablet cover we bought. I went online to find out what the tablet cover was made of and it was silicon. We had to buy a non silicon tablet cover for John's tablet and he been fine ever since. If you have or use anything that is silicon please do not give it or use it on John as he is allergic to silicon.

(dad) We only use natural oils now. Tea tree oil, lavender, rose oil, spearmint, peppermint, etc. Have you noticed John never has hair nits? He has tea tree oil on most days and he like me never seems to suffer with the natural oils like me. We only have Johnson's baby soap in the house and Johnsons shampoo because I have had no choice for a long time...

Emma Goode – We also use 99.9% purified water baby wipes, which has no chemicals or toxins in what so ever. We use these wipes on John's bum after he has a poo and we have never had a problem with hem at all. We also use 100% natural sun cream on John in the summer time because I used to use Nivea sun cream on him when he was little and then I noticed that he was reacting to the cream, so I stopped using the Nivea and started using the 100% natural sun cream and again never had a problem.

(dad) In previous experience, I have suffered from serious neurological and toxic side effects just from some shampoos and soaps, to the extent if I don't wash it off, I have to go lie down and I sleep non-stop. This is why I mentioned this all to the school regarding John being almost spaced out at times and even the head said he was swinging his hands but more lethargically as apposed to maliciously. This is why I am writing this now. I am desperately trying to make all aware that John probably has a little bit of what I have...

Please keep in johns file for all to access for future reference please.

I even get these mild symptoms off buying fancy coloured clothing. You can ask Emma. It's a big step for me just to buy a new shirt. Anyway, I have tried to make you all aware of my concerns, and here it is now in writing for you to keep on johns file for all staff to get access to...

When I worked at the furniture and electrical British heart foundation in Redditch, staff would occasionally have to ask me to go sit down and rest, because they could see the effect of the materials, dyes, chemicals etc., especially from the clothed sofas, I would have been carrying at the time...

Ironically, the serious cases were the best because I would notice the effect almost instantly, and avoid the cause accordingly. The more subtle effects sometimes took me time to realise, (bit like a cold or flu setting in you) and by then I would be lethargic and very out of it you could say. I would eventually have to go and rest and sleep it off.

Since changing my life style about 10years ago, I have never had any issues and it not until having john, that I am sadly seeing similar things with him poor thing. His mum has none of this as far as she is aware...

Emma Goode – I don't have anything like what Stuart has but I am very careful on what creams, lotions etc. I put on my body as I am allergic to E45, Tresemme and imperial leather. I don't put anything on my body anyway unless I really have to. I am also allergic to latex especially marigolds gloves.

(dad) We even had to stop washing john's cloths in fabric softeners because of the reactions I would have...

Hope this gives you a more informed and accountable insight into my life, and maybe another clue as to john's predicament. I will be expecting home help, the school, and ccn, to take all this into account.

Emma Goode – I am begging you from the bottom of my heart really be aware of this and really be mindful on what you are using on John at school and what you are giving him to play with because seriously John could be sensitive to anything and we just don't know, or have an allergic reaction to anything and we just don't know. Stuart mentioned we would gladly give you a bar of Johnson's soap for you to use on John's hands if you so wish but if you do not want that then can you please just wash his hands with plain water and please stop putting hand gel on his hands when he walks into class every morning or anytime of the day in fact. Me personally will not be very happy if I find out that you have ignored our request and carried on without informing us.
